

BYLIS

Bylis was born to Thomus and Pristetta in the town of Lankmar, where his father worked. At the age of three, Bylis's mother died under mysterious circumstances. Thomus, having an idea who did it, went out in search of the killer, leaving Bylis under the care of a nanny. Thomus would often visit Bylis and tell him stories of Thomus's pursuits. Bylis was Thomus's admirer until his father's death when he was seventeen. In a fit of revenge, Bylis left Lankmar and joined a group of bandits. He wander around with thge bandits for 3 years. Bylis finally came upon the only survivor of Thomus's party. He told Bylis that his father had already killed his killer as he was dying. Bylis decided to leave the bandits and stay with the old survivor to learn more about his much admired hero father. He learned two important things which he decided to act upon. He found out that his father had been an adventurer (class) and that he had possessed a very special sword which had been specially made for him. The old man told Bylis that the sword had had three blades. One blade was a +2, one blade was +3 against undead and the last blade was +2 against dragons. The best part about the sword, the old man had told him, was that the outer two blades operated like a cross bow. The blade also had a secret compartment to which the old man had the key. He gave the key to Bylis telling him that he had been instructed by Thomus to do so if he ever saw Bylis. Taking the key, he joined the same group of adventurers Thomus had belonged to and set in search of the sword. He recently joined a group of adventurers who he met in "The Green Rooster Tail" in the city of Drune. He is obsessed with the search for the sword, and will stop at nothing to find it.
